Vertrekdag, zaterdag 8 april 1995

Ieder gaat op eigen kracht naar Zaventem. Anderhalf uur vòòr het vertrek van het vliegtuigwordt er in geboekt, het vertrek is voorzien om 11 uur 's morgens, dus U wordt verwacht vanaf 9:30 a.m. Er zullen, al naar gelang de drukte één of twee check-in desks open zijn voor Archipel leden alleen. Hou er rekening mee dat er een ondervragingsprocedure kan zijn.
Pascontrole:
Om de U.S. te mogen bezoeken heeft ieder het volgende nodig:
- een ticket om terug te keren
- genoeg geld om te overleven gedurende uw verblijf
- een paspoort dat lang genoeg geldig is gedurende uw verblijf
(al die nog over geen internationaal paspoort beschikt moet dit dringend aanvragen in de gemeente waar hij woont, de procedure duurt ongeveer een week)
- een toelating om de U.S. binnen te mogen indien je over geen visum beschikt. Om de toelating te bekomen moet je een formuliertje invullen, dit krijg je op het vliegtuig.

De vlucht duurt ongeveer 8 uur en gaat over Brugge, Londen, Belfast, De noordelijke Atlantische Oceaan maar een heel stuk ten zuiden van IJsland, New Foundland, Erie-meer, Michigan-meer, Chicago. Op het vliegtuig heb je nog tijd om een tweede formuliertje in te vullen voor de douane.

Je komt toe in Chicago, het vliegveld noemt O'Hare, kwart voor één plaatselijke tijd. Daar wachten wij je op met twee bussen en een auto. Eerst zullen we nog het vliegveld bezoeken waar werk is van o.a. Pei, Perkins en Jahn.

Wij denken dat wij om 15:30 p.m; in het hotel aankomen. Ieder zal zijn kamer aangeduid krijgen en zal ook de ontbijtbonnetjes krijgen. Let op Archipel betaalt uw overnachtingen, het ontbijt en de taksen daarop. De directie is verwittigd dat alle extra's, (telefoontjes, drank, video's, betaal t.v. enz.) ten koste zijn van de deelnemers.

Na verfrissing zullen we je kort wegwijs maken in de stad en zullen je leiden naar een plaats waar je gemakkelijk restaurants vindt want volgens jullie tijdsklok is het dan 1:30 's morgens

De eerste dag

We wandelen rustig in boomrijke villa wijken (Oakpark, River forrest en Riverside) Wij verwachten geen schitterend weer, dus is het verstandig om regen kledij, pulls en een paraplu mee te doen. 's middags is er een korte tijd om wat eten te vinden.

Wat het eten betreft: Archipel zorgt elke morgen voor een stevig ontbijt. Keuze van koffie, thee of melk, sinaasappelsap, ei, worstjes of spek, aardappelen en toast met jam.

Dit moet volstaan om, mits een klein hapje 's middags de dag te doorstaan en dan 's avonds een restaurant van je keuze te bezoeken.

Let op! een gewoon junk-food restaurant zal boven op de aangekondigde prijs taksen bijrekenen, in Illinois bedraagt die 8 à 9 % in Wisconsin 5 à 6%
Als je in dergelijk fast-food ook nog aan tafel bediend wordt is het de gewoonte om een $ biljet achter te laten. In een beter restaurant is het de gewoonte om bovenop de taksen een fooi van 15% te betalen (ook als je met creditkaart betaalt) dus betaal je 20 à 25 % meer dan aangekondigd op de menukaart.

De tweede dag

We gebruiken geen bus maar doen alles te voet. Wij bezoeken de Loop, het financiële en bestuurlijke centrum van de stad. Het gebied is klein, slechts 1,5 km op 1,5 km, maar alle straten zijn interessant en dus wandelen wij ongeveer 12 km. (in een hele dag) is ons eerste bezoek aan de staat Wisconsin, nl. De stad Racine met het beroemde Johnson Wax. Men verwacht ons daar. Gezien de grootte van de groep zullen we het gebouw in 4 kleine groepjes bezoeken. Johnson Wax staat erop dat we tegelijkertijd naar een tweetal korte filmpjes kijken die ons moeten overtuigen dat de firma milieu bewust is. We hopen dat de leden begrip tonen voor deze situatie. In het doorrijden en terugkeren (de afstand is een kleine 100 km.) bezoeken we verschillende gebouwen, waaronder het al even beroemde Willits-House. Mevr. Robinson wacht ons daar op. We zijn terug om 18:30 in het hotel.

De derde dag

De vierde dag

Woensdag vertrekken we om 8:00 a.m. en bezoeken het westen en zuiden van de stad met een bezoek o.a. aan Crown Hall en Robie House, We zijn terug aan de Loop om 12:00 juist op tijd om een lezing bij te wonen over de meubels van F.L.W. en een tentoonstelling te bezoeken. Het bijwonen van de lezing is uiteraard vrij. Dan heb je een halve dag vrij om de talrijke musea te bezoeken. (De collecties zijn zeer rijk en behandelen alles, van Hopper tot Nike). Waarschijnlijk zijn er een paar onder U die ook denken aan shopping, U moet wel bedenken dat dezelfde regels gelden als voor cafés en restaurants, bovenop de aangekondigde prijs moet je staatstaksen betalen.

De vijfde dag

De tweede Wisconsin-dag, met een bezoek aan Madison en Spring green. We vertrekken om 8:30 a.m. en we zijn terug om 20:30!
In Wisconsin bezoeken we een privé-huis. De vrouw heeft ons verwittigd dat als het geregend heeft de tuin erg glad is. Doe daarom gepast schoeisel aan, We kunnen eventueel binnen gaan als we het niet vuil maken, ze is nogal bang als het geregend heeft dat ze opnieuw moet kuisen. Wij zullen dit trachten op te lossen, maar zorg er misschien voor dat je sloffen mee hebt. Het is een dag waar we lang op de bus zitten, maar het landschap loont de moeite om naar te kijken. Het moeten niet altijd gebouwen zijn. We zullen ook een stevige wandeling maken in Taliesin die deze dag speciaal voor Archipel geopend is. Het middagmaal kan gebruikt worden in visitor center.

De laatste dag

bezoeken we te voet het noordelijk gedeelte van de stad, aansluitend op de Loop. Nogmaals zullen we schitterende gebouwen zien. Tegen 11:00 nemen we de bussen om terug naar Oak park te rijden waar we het huis en het atelier van F.L.W. zullen bezoeken. Ik stel voor om geen tijd te verliezen met lunch en iets op het vliegveld te eten. Vanuit Oak Park vertrekken we naar O'Hare waar we kwart voor vijf opstijgen om de volgende dag zaterdag 15 april tegen zeven uur 's morgens plaatselijke tijd in Brussel te landen.

Hoe duur is Chicago?

Verblijf, ontbijt, vervoer en bezoeken werden door Archipel betaald, strikt genomen heb je slechts geld nodig voor zes middagmalen en zes avondmalen.
Een middagmaal in een fast-food kost tussen 3.00$ en 10.00$ Een avondmaal in een middenklasse restaurant kost 15.00$ tot... Een pintje (1/3 l.) kost 2.00 à 4.00$, verder zijn alle boeken, software, kledij en eigenlijk alles stukken goedkoper dan in België.

Opgepast.

Indien je ziek valt, of als je een ongeval tegenkomt kunnen dokters kosten zeer hoog oplopen in de U.S., Vraag aan uw mutualiteit voor hoeveel je verzekerd bent. Sluit eventueel een persoonlijke reisverzekering af (Euro-assistance e.d.).

De meeste ziekenfondsen hebben een Eurocross verzekering, die is geldig voor America, zelfs voor repatriëring, maar voor de U.S. is deze verzekering beperkt tot 200.000 frank. Indien je slechts ambulante zorgen nodig hebt betaal je deze in Amerika en U wordt terug betaald in België. Indien hospitalisatie gewenst is moet je eerst het nummer opbellen die op de Eurocross kaart vermeld staat.

Archipel neemt geen verantwoordelijkheid voor risico's, ongevallen, alle gevallen van overmacht en aansprakelijkheid tegen derden voor de organisatie op zich zelf. Zelfs indien er programma punten zijn die we om gelijk welke reden niet kunnen bezoeken kunnen wij niet verantwoordelijk gesteld worden.

Wij vragen aan de leden om het gevaar niet op te zoeken en 's avonds niet in wijken rond te lopen waar de openbare orde niet of onvoldoende je kan beschermen. Bij aankomst zullen deze gebieden aangeduid worden.

The second level of the apartment has large pneumatic doors pocketed into sculptural walls that slide out to create a bedroom, guestroom and private study. These walls also contain paintings! Even the master bath has been decorated with exquisite hand-made tiles commissioned especially for this project.

The furniture is mostly artwork as well, including a Ron Arad stainless steel number. The home entertainment centre on the first level is contained within a cabinet painted by Neraldo de la Paz to match and act as a continuation of a Kurt Frankenstein moonscape painting, 'Bureaucratic Planet', hung above it.

Oilily

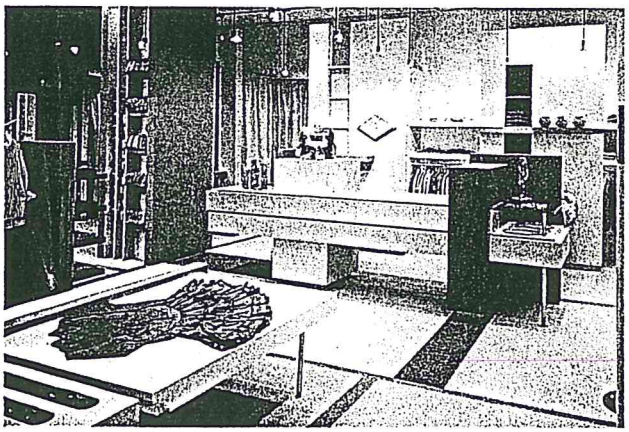

This is a pure geometrical composition. Labelled by the architects as a neo-plastic landscape, two-dimensional patterns on the floor, ceiling and storefront are interlocked with the three-dimensional display furniture.

The playful and colourful exploration of vertical and horizontal linear structure make this small retail space both fun and chic. Shocking pink, yellow, and blue rectilinear volumes create a three-dimensional version of Mondrian's work. Floating cubic display surfaces are set in asymetrical configurations. The solid forms, limited to planes, and round or square shafts are reminiscent of nursery building blocks. The bold colours and textured surfaces complement the wild ethnic motifs of the clothing. Different materials appear in the same colour or pattern, transforming from two to three dimensions and adding another layer of texture.

Narrow vertical shelving for socks, gloves and foldable items offset the horizontal forms. There is no consistent registration of perimeter height, each separate display is at a varying level with its neighbour. The shelves within the cases are all height coordinated and aligned, creating a sense of balance. The epoxy-stabilised floor is an abstract grid that is complemented by the orthogonal lighting fixtures and meshes with the intersecting planes and volumes of the cashwrap and display furniture.

around a central three-storey rotunda. Escalators at either end of the long layout are fit into curved atriums, visually opening up the space. A thin concrete coat had to be laid over the floor timbers to cut down on noise, but the sandblasted timber frame (it had been covered with white paint) is still visible. The original posts are reinforced with concrete columns with exposed brick capitals. These, along with the remaining heavy timber and brick structure, maximise the rugged maritime tableau.

To emphasise the new and contrast with the existing wood the architects made a point of adding mostly metal elements. Metallic materials are used throughout the interior, perforated or burnished sheet metal, visible clamps, steel mullions and the super original stainless steel floor tiles. All the interior street furniture – lamp posts, rubbish bins and railings – accentuate this industrial vocabulary.

Spots of planned colour enliven the atmosphere; a giant circular lamp suspended from the ceiling in the centre of the building is painted with the bright North Pier motif and then repeated in the floor tiles at the main entrance. This wavy maritime design is also incorporated into some of the metal door handles, a sign of the attention paid to the details of the scheme. The real colour is provided by the crowds who flock to this very popular spot every day.

North Pier

Containing roughly 450,000 square feet of space, this solid red brick and timber warehouse designed by Christian Eckstorm was completed in 1920 after fifteen years of construction. Devoted entirely to wholesale merchandise display, the Pugh Warehouse (after developer James Pugh) was the predecessor of the massive Merchandise Mart and the American Furniture Mart. Conversion of the old warehouse was the initial project of the Cityfront Center complex. The first stage of development for the adaptive reuse of the site involved redirecting the road along Lake Shore Drive to ease automobile access.

North Pier, as it is now called, has been transformed into a trendy, popular retail and office facility. The lower three floors (200,000 square feet) are devoted to small shops and restaurants and the remaining four levels (250,000 square feet) are office lofts. The fact that the floor plates were restricted to 10,800 square feet dictated the size of the boutiques. The entire building is essentially a row of seven inter-connected structures, each 120 x 90 feet. The masterplan for Cityfront Center allocated the site's eastern end for a residential tower. As a result, part of the original 900 foot warehouse was demolished, leaving it just 630 feet long.

Semicircular suspended dark green steel canopies hang above all the entrances on Illinois Street. Windows have been fitted into the old loading dock openings retaining the original dock number stamped on the steel frames. The Ogden Slip elevation has had a white steel and glass curtain wall added, bringing the edge of the building up to the waterfront. Decorative lookouts at either end of the galleria enhance the nautical theme displayed throughout the entire Pier. Outdoor cafés, a wooden boardwalk and docks for tour boats have created a lively location on the north bank of the Chicago River.

Internal circulation in the lower retail portion of the Pier is organised

Niketown

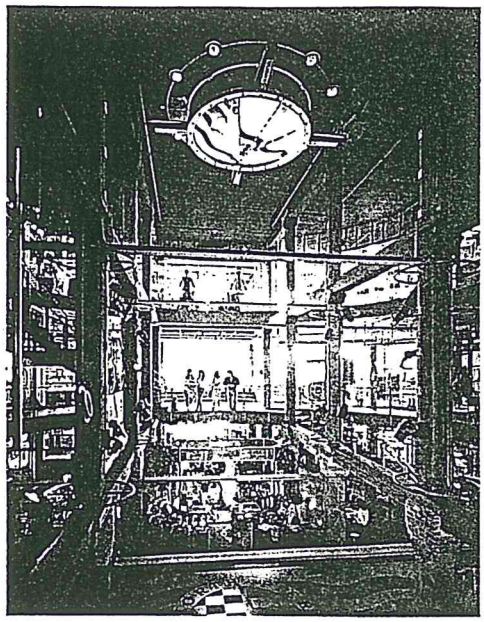

Smack next door to the Sony Gallery is the Nike Museum. A combination of Disneyland meets Smithsonian Institute, this is the sneaker hall of fame, dedicated to the glorification of anything Nike. The basic concept is a three-level pretend-outdoor shopping extravaganza, complete with manhole covers, cement pavement, brick walls, and the piped-in sounds of nature. Far less subtle than the Sony Gallery, although with equal attention to quality of detail, Niketown has a superb element of fun.

The lobby area is the Nike Museum, lined with Sports Illustrated covers featuring athletes who endorse Nike. A statue of Michael Jordan and a pair of his autographed shoes accompany plexiglas display cases with information about technological innovations in fitness gear. The amusement park atmosphere is heightened by oversized floats. My favourite display is a video pond, nine television screens installed in the floor and covered with a protective layer of plexiglas that show continuous seascape images.

New, bold and interactive, both the Sony and Nike showcase stores have become consumer cynosures on Magnificent Mile.

Boogies Diner

Vibrant primary colours, intersecting angular planes, neon signs and industrial vinyl carpet give this clothing shop-cum-eaterie a snappy, snazzy rock'n'roll atmosphere. Bright track lighting sheds an artificial glare on the leather jackets and cowboy boots for sale on the ground level, while diners devour juicy burgers and special curly fries on the upper level. An eclectic mix of vernacular influences dating back to 1950s-style drug store soda fountains and roadside coffee shops, this is the Chicago outlet of the Aspen-based chain. This youthful, super-friendly joint is striving for a clubby mentality. Boogies' own baseball hats signed by music and film celebrities hang in a row above the long lunch counter, indicating the great desirability of being part of the Boogies crowd. Blaring juke box music completes the fun, partytime atmosphere.

Banana Republic

This free-standing two-storey hut is a romanticised version of a small tropical plantation villa. Robert Stern's first central Chicago commission is this clothing store, suggestive of turn-of-the-century colonial prefabricated metal structures. Stern has created a prototypical make-believe exotic backdrop for this fashionable retailer.

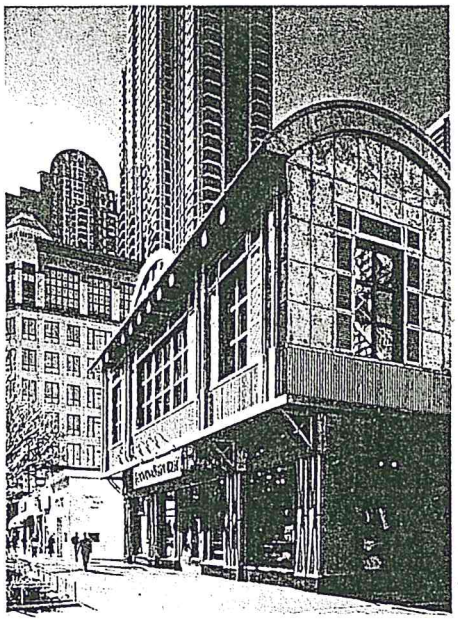

Lead-coated copper panels form the barrel-vaulted roof, and the bronze façade has teak-framed windows complete with pretend tropical shutters. The exterior is beautifully detailed with solid bronze strapping woven round lead-coated copper piers reminiscent of sheaves of bamboo. (Bundles of real dried grasses dot the interior.)

The French colonial settlement motif continues inside. The main focal point is a sophisticated suspended double-return glass and steel staircase, hanging from guyed cables underneath the gabled skylight. The materials are extremely warm and luxurious – leather strapping is woven round the white oak handrail and the laminated glass stairtreads are sandwiched with rice paper. The cross-lashed leather basket-weave theme recurs throughout. Two lacquered particle-board tents laced with steel cable disguise the cash counter areas.

Sony Gallery

State of the art is the overall image of this sophisticated adult toy store. Punctuated by steel-framed floor-length windows and three navy canopies suspended by cables from the third floor, the four-storey façade is a simple limestone affair. The elegant entrance has a black granite floor inlaid with reflective stainless steel bars. This leads onto bleached oak on which brushed metal pedestals display Sony's latest electronics. All items are available at retail price, but the goal here is for shoppers to experience electronics in a simulated lifestyle setting. A home-theatre display on the first floor demonstrates TV in a pretend living room, complete with Missoni rug and Le Corbusier furniture. A beautiful grey, metal and fabric undulating ceiling wave conceals the system components and audio speakers.

The Boston-based architectural firm Elkus Manfredi chose a neutral palette to highlight and frame the black and white merchandise. The constant video imagery supplies background colour. Semi-transparent perforated metal backdrops separate different product type areas. A central two-way perforated metal and glass staircase passes through the second-floor curved ceiling cutaway, allowing continuous visibility.

Terra Museum of American Art

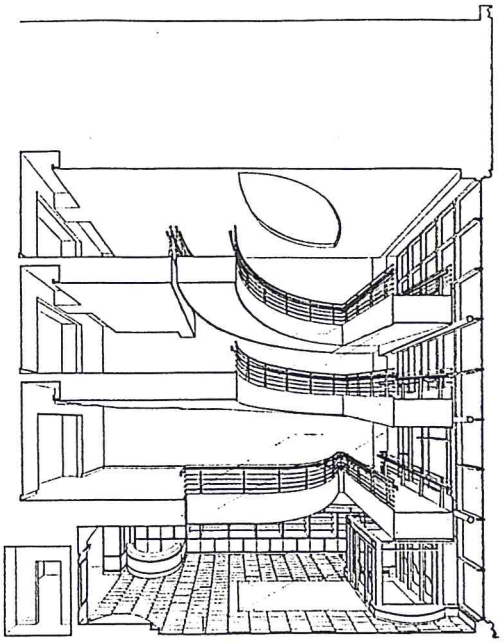

Estabished in 1980, this collection of American art was originally located in Evanston. The new site, three adjacent buildings, was aquired in 1985. No. 664, the corner building, had its façade cleaned and the interior was transformed from offices to four floors of loft-style galleries. The next-door building has been completely made over. Clad in grey-veined white Vermont marble with a five-storey glass curtain wall insert, this façade is a sophisticated addition to the street. The elegant pavilion elevation is the highlight of the project. At night an elliptical light fixture at the fifth floor makes a spectacular effect.

Past the cosy pale mahogany lobby the building is a big disappointment. The design is baffling: the primary concern seems to be about circulation and not appropiate picture display. Faced with mismatched floor levels and vertically oriented exhibition space, wide, shallow ramps with thin white railings lead to tiny exhibition spaces within No. 666. Obviously inspired by Frank Lloyd Wright's Guggenheim Museum, here the ramps are purely for circulation and do not display any artwork. If No. 670 North Michigan is eventually used, then the ramps can be read as a central circulation point, joining all the buildings, and making a far more sensible scheme.

Athletic Club, Illinois Center

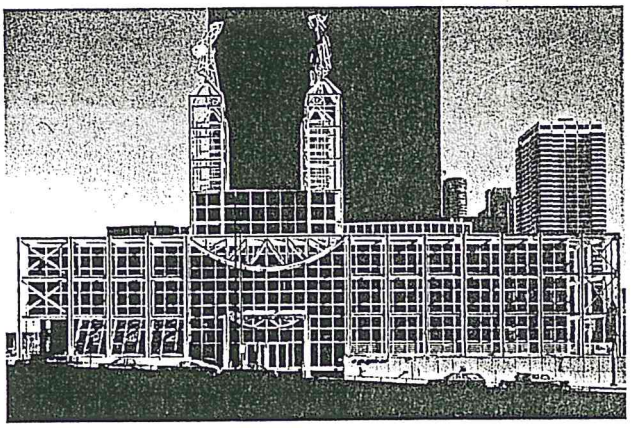

Aside from possessing the tallest (116 feet) indoor climbing wall in Chicago and allegedly having Michael Jordan as a member, the Athletic Club can also claim fame as America's first building designed by Kisho Kurokawa. The gym is a small white structure, almost swallowed up by its neighbours in the dense 83-acre mixed-use development known as the Illinois Center. The Illinois Center is so large that it apparently has several zip codes! Conceived in 1967 by Mies van der Rohe, construction began in 1975 and expected completion is in the late 1990s. Built around an incredibly confusing tri-level street system and incomprehensible pedestrian concourses, the Center is dark and overpowering. Indifferent to Michigan Avenue or the river, the complex is architecturally incoherent. Looming, oppressive tower blocks are packed around gloomy plazas. The light and airy Athletic Club is definitely the highlight.

Only two of the Club's six storeys are visible from Stetson Avenue, the rest are below grade. The exterior is an aluminium and glass curtain wall caged in a white, wide-flange steel framework. The main entrance is at the fifth floor. A whimsical decorative element has been added onto the top level, presumably to draw the eye to the sunken building: steel pedestals support 17-foot kinetic wind sculptures by Osamu Shingu.

Vivere

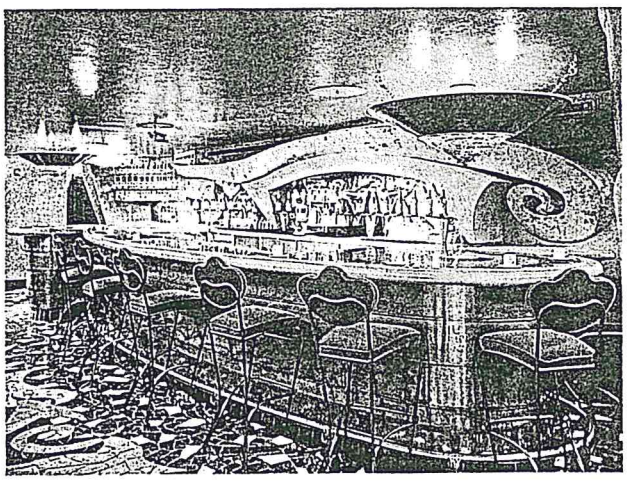

Layers of sensual spirals in a soft rusty palette create a magical neo-Baroque ambience in this lovingly renovated restaurant. Each romantic surface and voluptuous object – tableware, door handles, chairs, walls, tables – has been custom-designed by the hotshot designer Jordan Mozer. Involved at every level and stage of design and execution, Mozer has been called a throwback to the days of the masterbuilder. Working directly with artisans, he had practically everything in Vivere handmade. His method of working sometimes consists of blowing-up freehand drawings to life-size and having craftsman build directly from these.

The omnipresent spiral motif was inspired by a detail in the original space (known as the Florentine Room), and seized upon as representative of Italian Baroque architecture. This was pertinent because, as the third of three restaurants housed in one building, called Italian Village, Vivere serves delicious though eclectic, gourmet, regional and seasonal Italian cuisine, and has a renowned wine list. The spiral metaphorically represents the genealogical history of the restaurant's ownership, having been founded three generations ago in 1927 by an Italian immigrant, handed down to his children and currently run by their grandchildren.

This super-meaningful helix is evident everywhere in the long, narrow, split-level space. A curvy iron entry gazebo, behind the large mahogany front door, paves the way for endless twisty, bulgy forms. 13-foot, copper, internally illuminated corkscrews descend like fat slinky toys from the ceiling. In the centre of the rear main room an 8-foot-wide chandelier supposedly fabricated by an aeroplane nose-cone company is inlaid with a leaded glass whorl. The chairs, bar stools and booths finish in twists, and the bar itself is a spiral.

These ripe, organic shapes are complemented by rich surfaces on the walls, mosaic floors, and stained-glass panels. Silk drapery hangs above narrow mirrors on textured walls that have had streaks of different coloured plaster applied with a cake icer. The snailshell-shaped lighting fixtures are particularly wonderful, made of handblown glass set in copper.

Drama and theatricality are appropriate here; the restaurant has always been patronised by opera stars and fans from the nearby Lyric Opera.

158 Japanese Screen Gallery

A mixture of traditional Japanese architecture and geometric minimalism characterises Tadao Ando's first project in America. This signature space is the last room in the recently renovated 16,500 square foot Chinese, Japanese, and Korean wing of the Art Institute.

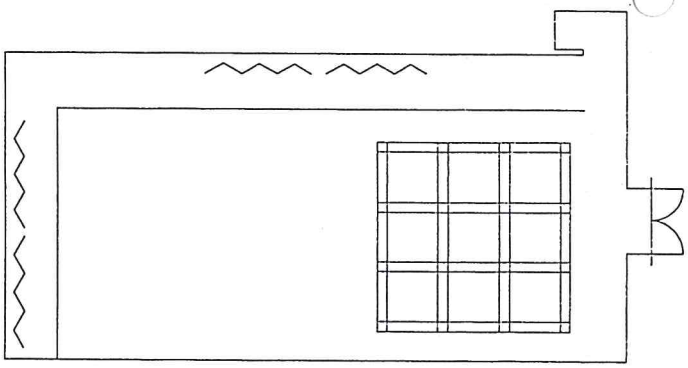

Access is through glass doors, necessary for proper temperature and humidity control. A symmetrical forest of sixteen free-standing oil-stained oak columns, a foot square and 10 feet high, forms a grid directly in front of the entrance. According to Ando, '... the pillars obstruct the viewer's gaze and yet help to suggest depth and resonance of the space. As the visitor moves through this space, the static pillars change their relationships. At times the pillars overlap and unite'.

The display cases containing the screens and ancient ash-glazed stoneware jars seem oddly placed, winding in an L formation along the back and right side walls. They are actually placed to make a point. Physical metaphors for the expansion of space, the panels' purpose is the division of space for privacy yet the art they sport suggests spatial depth.

186 Chiasso

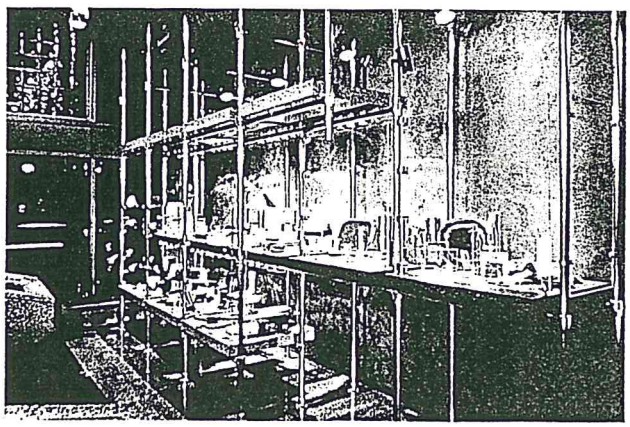

Adjacent to the lobby of the glossy Skidmore, Owings & Merrill 303 Madison Street office tower (completed in 1988) is an amusingly witty store. Packed with trendy designer objects, accessories and toys for the modern executive, the shop points a gently mocking finger at the dead serious building it inhabits.

Conceived as a stage set in the process of either being constructed or disassembled, the shop consists of fragmented forms placed in an unfinished space. Amongst exposed ductwork and an unusually furry ceiling (most likely faux insulation!) only synthetic-faux materials have been used. The 'industrial look' has taken a new twist with exposed standard scaffolding supporting fragments of display tables covered, of course, in faux pigskin laminates.

Faux granite, faux bronze, faux brushed aluminium, faux ebonised oak and even faux paint texture laminates create this anecdotal environment. The contrast between the very serious, shiny, dark, marble lobby and the sleek corporate toys available in the shop is extremely clever.

Chicago

Hog-butcher for the world
Tool-maker, Stacker of Wheat
Player with Railroads and the Nation's Freighthandler;
Stormy, husky, brawling
City of the Big Shoulders:

And they tell me you are crooked, and I answer: Yes it's true I have seen the gunman kill and go free to kill again.

And they tell me you are brutal and my reply is: On the faces of women and children I have seen the marks of wanton hunger.

And having answered so I turn once more to those who sneer at this city, and I give them back the sneer and say to them:

Come and show me another city with lifted head singing so proud to be alive and coarse and strong and cunning.

Flinging magnetic curses amid the toil of piling job to job, here is a tall slugger set vivid against the little soft cities;

Fierce as a dog with tongue lapping for action, cunning as a savage pitted against the wilderness;
Bareheaded,
Shovelling,
Wrecking,
Planning,
Building, breaking, rebuilding,
Under the smoke, dust all over his mouth, laughing with white teeth,
Under the terrible burden of destiny laughing
as a young man laughs.
Laughing even as an ignorant fighter laughs who has never lost a battle,

Bragging and laughing that under his wrist is the pulse, and under his ribs the hart of the people.
Laughing!

Laughing the stormy, husky, brawling laughter of youth; half naked, sweating, proud to be Hog-butcher, Tool-maker, Stacker of Wheat, Player with railroads, and Freight-handler to the Nation.
